

Christian Youth Plan Congress at Y Camp; Is Fifth Anniversary

Howard G. Launsbach, State C. E. President, To Address Banquet Celebrating Fifth Year of Ulster County Movement.

THEME OF MEETING

Sunday Sunrise Service Will Feature Roger K. Powell as Lake-side Speaker.

The fifth annual Youth Congress, sponsored by the Ulster County Christian Youth Council, will open at Glenside Lake on Friday, September 11, and will continue through Sunday, September 13. The theme for the entire Congress will be "Live Creatively," and all conferences and discussions will center directly about this topic. The Rev. Russell S. Gaenzle, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer of Kingston, will be the dean of the Congress, and will be assisted by the Rev. Clarence E. Brown of the Wurts Street Baptist Church.

Quest Periods

The committee in charge of arrangements for the Congress, headed by General Chairman Miss Ruth Chase, have announced that several well-known local leaders of youth have been secured to take charge of the quest periods to be held Friday evening and Saturday morning.

On Friday evening a discussion period on "Youth Questing for God" will be held by the Rev. Goodrich Gates, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Kingston. Saturday morning conferences will be held on "Youth Questing for Life" led by Henry G. Dunbar, vocational guidance director of Kingston High School; "Youth Questing for Christ" led by Mrs. Lee Ball of Catskill; "Youth Questing for Fellowship" led by the Rev. J. Thoburn Legg of the Port Ewen Methodist Church; and "Youth Questing for Creative Leisure Time" directed by Neland H. Fuller, Boy's Secretary of the local Y. M. C. A.

Evening Banquet

Plans for an unusually fine banquet are being made for Saturday evening, September 12. This banquet will be in the form of a celebration in commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the Youth Congress, and it is expected that the program for the evening will surpass that of all other years.

The speaker at this banquet will be Howard G. Launsbach, president of the New York State Christian Endeavor Union. Mr. Launsbach has long been identified with Christian Youth and their work, and has often been a leader in summer assemblies of youth. He is a forceful and pleasing speaker, always being able to capture the attention of his audience and hold them until he has finished. A bit of evidence of Mr. Launsbach's popularity with Christian Youth may be found in the fact that at the State Christian Endeavor Convention in Poughkeepsie last July, he was elected to the presidency of the State Union without a dissenting vote.

Sunrise Service

A Galilean sunrise service, to be held at the side of Glenside Lake with the young people seated in boats close to the shore, has been planned for Sunday morning. This is rather a novel idea for arranging a religious service but the thought of something different rather appealed to the committee, so the initial appearance of such a service in this locality was decided upon.

The speaker for this service will be Roger K. Powell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd W. Powell of this city, who enters Colgate-Rochester Divinity School this fall to study for the Baptist ministry. Mr. Powell will use as his topic, "In The Morning With Christ," using as a reference the Fifth Psalm. Mr. Powell, better known as "Rog" to many of the young people, has always been extremely interested in the work of the church, and for the past four years he has studied at the University of Syracuse. Before he left this city for college, Mr. Powell made many friends who will no doubt welcome the chance to hear one of their former schoolmates making good on the path of life.

Registration Instructions. Bulletin giving full details about the Congress will be released within a few days and registration will be opened to all interested young people. This Congress is entirely inter-denominational and is offered to all young people of Ulster county who are church members or have an interest in the activities of Christian Youth.

Gunsman Is Slain

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—An unidentified gunman who shot down three delegates to a bargaining union convention here, killing one, was sought today while police expected the opinion that the shooting was the result of a labor feud. A woman bystander was wounded.

Two Days For Investigation

Ray Minkley, 41, of Saxton, was arrested Friday by Sergeant Con-Yonnes Prince, 28, persuaded the child to take poison with her. "I was attracted before Justice George said she was going to save her yesterday to the Ulster county jail for today. "But mother said it would be good for my complexion."

Southerners Flavor Ads With Politics

It may seem rather peculiar, but judging from some sample ads from a Petersburg, Va., paper, business men in the "solid south" have more "sand" when it comes to letting people know where they stand politically, even though they may favor the party that is supposed to be in a decided minority, than do most of their brethren in the north, surrounded as the latter are by people, the majority of whom are of their own political faith.

The ads referred to are published twice a week in a Petersburg paper by Gresham & Ware and by one or two allied concerns. They are in the form of the classified ads carried by The Freeman and several of them are run in one issue of the paper under the general heading of "Krazy Kraz." One of four such ads printed in a recent edition of the paper reads as follows:

"Vacation reports on President Roosevelt say he will place his feet on land for the first time in 13 days. That's funny, some think he hasn't had his feet on land for three years. If you are living in clouds or air castles, come down and put your feet on land at 123 North Market street, where bargains await you in used lumber, brick, sheet iron, pipe, iron girder and what-not. Gresham & Ware, Inc.

The rest of the ads follow the same line. The clippings were received recently by County Treasurer Pratt Boice, who is a brother-in-law of R. S. Ware, one of the members of the firm of Gresham & Ware. He was formerly connected with the James O. Winston Co. and was with them for seven years when the latter were engaged in work on the Ashokan dam. Later he was with them in the south. For the past seven or eight years he has been in business in Petersburg and Mr. Boice says that reports are that the firm is doing well.

Objects to Being Addressed as Rat

Daniel J. Murphy had Henry Thomas, a Negro, Arrested on Charge of Disorderly Conduct—Other Police Court Cases.

Daniel J. Murphy of this city has decided objections to being called a rat or other names and Friday afternoon he arrested Henry Thomas, a negro of 61 Murray street, on a charge of disorderly conduct and turned Thomas over to the police.

This morning in police court Mr. Murphy said that Mr. Thomas had called him a rat and other names. Mr. Thomas confessed that he had called Mr. Murphy a rat, but denied that he had used foul language on the street as charged in the information.

Jurgo Walter H. Gill, after hearing both sides of the subject, sentenced Mr. Thomas to pay a fine of $5, but suspended the payment of the fine, provided Mr. Thomas refrain in the future from calling Mr. Murphy a rat or any other name.

Irving Levine of 31 Abrayn street was arrested by his wife on Friday who charged her husband with third degree assault. She had a black and blue mark on one arm which she said was inflicted by her husband. The hearing was adjourned to next Tuesday.

Isadore Lippman of 63 Newkirk avenue was arrested last night for driving a truck that had no tail light, and only one headlight lit. On Mr. Lippman's plea of guilty he was fined $3 and advised to have tail light placed on the truck before he operated it again.

Spanish Rebels Open Savage Offensive Upon Irun, Losses Are Heavy

Some 3,000 Fascist Volunteers, Under Cover of Artillery Barrage, Mass on Road; Loyalists' Fire is Withering.

LOYAL GAINS

Asturian Miners Prevent Reinforcements Reaching Rebels at Oviedo; 6 Towns Claimed.

By Elmer W. Peterson. (Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press) BILBAO, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 15.—Spanish rebels today opened a savage attack against the town of Irun.

Casualties were heavy. The offensive was the heaviest directed against the Bay of Biscay town in the past week, advances reaching this border village said.

Under cover of a barrage laid down by their artillery, some 3,000 rebels, mostly volunteers, massed on a road leading into Irun only to meet with a withering fire from government forces.

They were beaten back. The old government fort and munitions dump at Plana de Aya, southeast of the shell-torn town of Oyarzun was blown up by the rebels. It was believed to have been hit by a shell from big guns attached to a rebel column operating out of Oyarzun.

Casualties in the column which rushed headlong down the road leading to the city apparently were heavy.

Big guns from government forts at Guadalupe and San Marcos raked the approach to the community, and government militia kept up a steady machine gun fire on the same objective.

A government newspaper at San Sebastian, the "Frente popular," reported the execution of seven officers charged with resisting the government's capture of the casino and hotel barracks when the Madrid troops succeeded in taking the town from insurgents.

Irun is Bombed. Two rebel planes dropped bombs on Irun early this morning and then flew westward toward San Sebastian.

High diplomatic authorities, meanwhile, instituted a move to prevent further bombardment of the coastal resort city by rebel warships. (Government leaders earlier had threatened to execute Fascist hostages if the rebel fighting ship Almirante Cervera re-opened its shelling.)

The diplomats endeavored to gain agreements from both sides, asking the rebels to withhold their naval fire and the government to withdraw its execution threat.

They gained definite promises from neither the rebels nor the government. The Almirante Cervera was reported to have left the vicinity of San Sebastian and was declared to have engaged in another combat. Some reports were that it battled government vessels off the northern coast and other were that it joined rebel planes in the bombardment of Santander.

Gains of Loyalists. By RAMON BLANDINO (Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press) Madrid, Aug. 15 (AP).—Labor advances by government troops into the rebel sectors of Granada, Zaragoza, Oviedo and Huesca were reported by the war ministry today.

Asturian miners, equipped with dynamite and rifles, marched to the outskirts of the rebel city of Oviedo, the government asserted, and prevented reinforcements from reaching rebel troops.

Six towns in four provinces were claimed occupied by militiamen fighting to support the Socialist Madrid regime which Fascist rebels are seeking to overthrow.

The ministry listed these as captured: Hinojosa and Bel Alcazar in Cordoba; Navalmoral De La Sierra in Avila; Alcazar in Zaragoza, and Pueblo De Valverde and Mora De Rubielos in Teruel.

The government forces still held Badajoz, capital of the province of that name in western Spain, the ministry asserted, although the announcement indicated fierce fighting was going on in the region.

(Rebel) advances from Portugal declared the Fascist had moved into the city and occupied all except the old quarter where government troops still held out.

Two Battle Lines. Two lines of battle were drawn around the San Sebastian area, center of a converging rebel advance.

Artillery duels between rebel and government gunners featured the engagements, northern sources said, although an infantry battle was imminent.

(Reports from London, obtained through diplomatic channels, described Madrid as under the control of "red" mobs.) Diplomats were preparing to evacuate, it was declared.

(The state department at Washington was notified by Eric C. Wendell, third secretary in charge of the United States embassy in the Spanish capital, that warships had been sent to 146 American nationals still in Madrid they might remain only "on their own responsibility.")

A roundup of alleged spies and Fascist sympathizers was ordered begun at Escorial, 24 miles northwest of Madrid.

22 Men, Boys Killed Today As Canadian Pacific Train Splinters Truck in Quebec

Ladies, If You Must Wear 'Em Short Do So at Home, Say Cops

For some years the practice of wearing abbreviated clothing or shorts by women in the business sections of the city has been frowned upon by the city authorities and a great number of self respecting citizens.

The Common Council has been requested from time to time to enact suitable laws to meet this situation. It has been decided by the corporation council, however, that there were sufficient laws already enacted to curb this practice.

So ladies if you insist on wearing shorts it would be wiser to wear them at home and not on the streets and stand the risk of being stopped by a policeman and notified to appear in city court.

Strike of Drivers Still On, but They Were All Dismissed

The picket line of truck drivers of Cream of Malt, Inc., distributors of Ballantine beer in this territory, were again on duty in front of the distributing plant on Field Court this morning, but no disorder marked the strike which was called Friday morning by two organizers from the Truck Drivers' Union who came here from Poughkeepsie that morning.

H. B. O'Connor, manager of the distributing plant, stated this morning that shortly after the strike was called yesterday that other drivers for the trucks were employed and that deliveries of beer were made, and that by Monday morning deliveries would be back to normal.

Questioned as to the status of the six truck drivers, who struck for shorter hours and higher wages, he stated that all six men had been discharged and that they are being replaced with other truck drivers. The drivers struck for a 44-hour week with a wage of $35 weekly.

The striking drivers claimed Friday that they were working from 13 to 18 hours a day.

Search Goes On for George Kaufman

Los Angeles, Aug. 15 (AP).—A dogged search for the playwright, George S. Kaufman, went on today, providing a sequel to the late Mary Astor-Dr. Franklin Thorpe custody battle.

Four-year-old Marylyn Thorpe, the cause of the sensational struggle, was cloistered with her film actress mother in her Toluca Lake home. Under the terms of a custody settlement, she will remain with Miss Astor nine months of the year, with Dr. Thorpe the other three.

Sheriff's deputies continued their hunt for Kaufman, who failed to appear as a witness in the hearing.

Said Superior Judge Goodwin J. Knight, "I'll put that man in jail if I ever get my hands on him."

Miss Astor testified that she had discussed her relationship with Kaufman "quite frankly" with her husband, and that Dr. Thorpe condoned it.

Building Activity

San Francisco, Aug. 15 (AP).—Building activity has expanded about 300 per cent through the far west during the last two years. Averaging more than $20,000,000 a month for the last 2 months, building permits issued in the seven far western states ran about four times the values recorded for the same months of 1934.

Exaction Charges Added.

San Francisco, Aug. 15 (AP).—Exaction charges added a surprising sensation to the Ann Cooper Hewitt sterilization case today, hung into it as a counter-charge by the defense in the mayhem trial of two San Francisco physicians. Rogers, Post Death Occurred Year Ago

Hollywood, Aug. 15 (AP).—Today is the first anniversary of the death of Will Rogers.

Early on the morning of August 15, 1935, the world was informed that the beloved actor-writer, with his friend Wiley Post, had lost his life in an airplane crash near Point Barrow, Alaska, an outpost.

Hollywood marked the anniversary with few ceremonies today. Rupert Hughes, chairman of the California section of the national committee preparing a memorial to Rogers, said, "It would be morbid to try to do much in the way of a public gathering on the anniversary of Will Rogers' death."

However, a memorial radio program was planned at the Woman's Club of Hollywood. William Farnum, actor and friend of the comedian, prepared a short eulogy and a program of Rogers' favorite songs. James E. Shor-maker, president, and members of the Oklahoma State Society were guests of honor.

Hughes said the national committee has received about $250,000 to use as a memorial for Rogers. A million-dollar actors' hospital at Saranac, N. Y., has been dedicated to Rogers, and there has been a $500,000 fund donated for its upkeep.

The field where Rogers formerly played polo now bears his name. A $500,000 sound stage at 20th Century-Fox studios, where he was under contract, also has been dedicated to him. A plaque on the building carries his likeness in bronze.

The Santa Monica ranch home where he lived still is the family abode. His elder son, Will, Jr., has gone into the newspaper business and has acquired four neighborhood publications. His daughter, Mary, plans a stage career. Jimmy, the younger boy, is still in school.

Party of 40, Returning From Political Rally, Hit Squarely by Fast Freight; Bodies Strewn Over Roadbed.

17 DIE AT ONCE

Driver Alleged to Have Passed Two Cars Stopped at Crossing; Many Dead are Boys.

Louisville, Que., Aug. 15 (AP).—Twenty-two men and boys were crushed to death early today when a fast Canadian Pacific freight train struck and splintered a large truck in which they were riding.

Returning from a political rally, a party of some 40 persons drove directly into the path of the locomotive at a grade crossing as it hurtled toward them at high speed. A dozen or more were injured. Four men who sensed danger a split second before the locomotive struck jumped to safety.

Witnesses said the truck passed two passenger cars which had halted at the crossing for the train.

Seventeen men apparently killed outright, and within a few hours five others mangled by the terrific impact had succumbed to their injuries.

The accident occurred at a level crossing one mile west of this village. Bodies were strewn over the roadbed.

The wreckage of the truck blazed as it ricocheted along the right of way and thumped to a stop.

The truck was crushed as though it were a fragile board box, the men spilled out, some of them rolling under the wheels of the train. Steel shrieked against steel as the engineer in the locomotive applied the brakes and the train jolted to a stop.

Rescuers—the handful of persons who witnessed the accident and members of the train crew—raced down the right of way to pull bodies from the wreckage of the truck and from under the wheels of the train.

Many of the truck's occupants were mere boys from 14 to 16 years of age.

Walking Among Dead. Within an hour after the accident Canon Elise Lanneton, the Rev. Father Donat Baril and Abbe Paul Decarufel were walking among the dead and injured administering last rites.

Ambulances took some of the injured to hospitals in nearby Three Rivers.

Four local physicians attended the injured as best they could. A garage was pressed into service as a temporary morgue and first aid station.

The victims were all residents of Louisville and immediate vicinity and had attended a political debate staged as part of the campaign in Quebec's provincial election.

Bodies and wreckage were strewn along the railroad track after the terrific force of the collision shoved the truck along the rails. The truck caught fire and burned.

Joseph Richot, who owns a garage near the crossing, was the first to reach the scene. He organized a crew of rescue workers and, aided by the train crew and police, pulled many bodies from the wreckage.

Taken to Hospital

The injured were taken to the Three Rivers Hospital, 15 miles east of Louisville.

Dr. Thomas Caron, coroner, began an immediate investigation after establishing a temporary morgue in Richot's garage.

The men were returning home from St. Justine who, J. L. Thibault, Liberal member of Parliament, and Paul Caron, Union Nationale candidate, had debated.

The dead included: Edmond Houliet, 49, driver and owner of the truck; Roland Hubert, 21; Adrien Levesque, 16; Jean Jacques Jumeau, 14; Albert Barbeau, 23; Armand Paul, 25; Eugene Barbeau, 16; Edouard Labonne, 42; Florian Lefebvre, 19; Bertrand Stclair, 17; Fernand Gellme, 15; Emile Boudreau, 19; Benjamin Paquet, 21; Emile Landry, 17.

All but Barbeau, who was from St. Justine, were residents of Louisville.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Aug. 15 (AP).—The report of the treasury August 12 was: Receipts, $14,585,000; expenditures, $28,072,474; balance, $2,093,500,204. Customs receipts for the month, $1,444,091.39. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $2,017,717,172.44; expenditures, $2,017,717,172.44; balance, $0.00. Gross debt, $28,401,476,629.84, a decrease of $175,450.00 from the previous day. Gold assets, $10,652,541,145.42.

The First Psychologist
The history of psychology may be said to begin with Plato, who was the first influential scientist to draw a clear distinction between the mind and the body. Aristotle went farther than Plato in distinguishing different faculties of the mind and attempted to solve the relation of the mind and the body. His acute analysis of the human organism, "De Anima," remained the standard work on psychology for nearly 2,000 years.

RESOLUTIONS

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kingston Young Men's Christian Association, held at the Association Building on Thursday evening, July 2, 1936, the Board was deeply moved at having presented to it, the request for resignation of the General Secretary, Clarence S. Schoonmaker; said resignation to take effect August 15, 1936.

Realizing the difficult situation facing the Kingston Association in the Fall of 1929, when Mr. Schoonmaker was called, and subsequently the increasing tension on that situation with the prevailing economic disorders, each member of the Board is fully appreciative and fully conscious of the courage and tact with which Mr. Schoonmaker has coped with these problems. The members of the Board express their sincere appreciation to Mr. Schoonmaker, who at this time to sustain the loss of our amiable and effective General Secretary.

It is the unanimous opinion of the Board that Mr. Schoonmaker has been thoroughly unselfish and faithful in the performance of his duties—that he has given those duties a vital personal touch, as can be witnessed in his frequent interviews with discouraged young men concerning their personal difficulties; and likewise in the many friendships that he has established.

Beyond his duties to the Association, he has given of his time and effort to the Community at large, in a spirit of helpful and willing co-operation, which will long be remembered by the churches, Service Clubs, and Public Officials of this city. The effect of his influence will deepen with the passing years.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED: that although we feel that Mr. Schoonmaker's work in Kingston is still unfinished, we are sensible of the greater opportunities which await him in the new field to which he has been called. We express not only our own convictions as a Board but the convictions of the Community as well, that our loss is others' gain.

THEREFORE BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: that it is with sincere regret that we accept the resignation of Clarence S. Schoonmaker as General Secretary of Kingston Y. M. C. A. as of August 15, 1936, and wish him God Speed as he leaves our midst.

By S. S. STEVENSON

Observations here and there: A Times Square window cleaner, working a dozen stories above the street, dropping his wiping cloth and making a grab for it. Cold chills. A window full of 13-cent neckties. With ready tied bows at nine cents. I'd pay a lot more to be able to get that same effect with evening ties. No matter how hard I work, they always come out top-sided. A big lobster waving a languid claw at a pretty girl peering into a restaurant window. The old roue. Bootblacks battling over a choice position in front of an eighth avenue vacant store-room. Forty-third street blocked with big busses bound here and there. Taxicab drivers engaged in horn practice. As if they could blow them out of the way. A bearded old sandwich man, clad in a choice assortment of rags, advertising a beauty shop.

Wall street: A messenger boy with a handful of yellow envelopes, whistling and smoking a cigarette at the same time as he strolls along leisurely. A young man with a black grip chained to his wrist and a policeman on the other end of the chain. The scars in the side of the Morgan building. The last mementoes of the great Wall street explosion. Guards stopping and questioning those who would crash the gates of the Stock Exchange. A top-hatted broker with a red carnation in his buttonhole. The dignified spire of Trinity. George Washington atop a pedestal in front of the old sub-treasury. A street preacher imploring passers-by to turn to God. Great temples of Mammon housing thousands of workers. And the dingy piers of the East river.

Meditations: Wonder what became of those tokens the Interborough Transit company had made when it anticipated an increase in subway fares to seven cents? Why the engineers who designed the Forty-second street station of the municipal subway, allowed only one small entrance and exit on either side of Eighth avenue? Why New York taxicab drivers won't open or close doors for their passengers? Why some box of superior to those who pay their salaries by buying seats? Why New Yorkers will risk death by crossing streets against traffic and then spend ten minutes looking at men drilling asphalt? Why bank tellers don't go cuckoo counting money all day?

Sidewalk cafes adding a Paris touch to the old town. And giving patrons soot and grit along with food and drink. A commuter struggling through Forty-second street traffic with a big coil of garden hose over his shoulder. Bryant Park torn up again. That seems to be its natural state. Once it was a reservoir. A young man "clocking" pedestrians as they pass an empty store-room. Making a count for someone contemplating opening a business there. Helen Hayes, who in a little more than a month, will cease being Queen Victoria. For the summer only, however.

Tourists staring at downtown skyscrapers. Their clothes proclaim that they came from Europe. Americans probably look just as funny to them. The glistering fireboats moored at Pier A. They look as if they were straining to go into action. The sun shining on the red buildings of Ellis Island. Don't hear so much about that gateway nowadays. Idlers leaning against the sea wall railings at the Battery. Coast guard cutters resting at piers. And the funny little ferry that runs over to Governors island.

Maybe I'm wrong, but it seems to me that New York changes its character with the change of seasons. In winter, it's cold, hard, artificial. In summer, it's hot, tired and inclined to be curt. In autumn, it's rebellious, those who have been away to the shore or mountains resenting return to steel and concrete and those who have been forced to stay here through the heated term, resenting months of imprisonment in apartments and tenements. In spring, it's like a lot of prisoners released without parole or probation and inclined to be a bit boisterous over their luck. Right now, it seems to be an overgrown village, friendly and with leisure to gaze at excavations, line up alongside Riverside drive and stare at the Hudson and block pedestrian traffic whenever there is a window demonstration.

Haircutting Dates Back to Greeks, Romans, Jews

Haircutting and hairdressing were practiced by the ancient Greeks and Romans, the Jews, etc. There are numerous references to this in the Old Testament. The Greeks cut their hair rather short and curled it in small ringlets; their children wore it long, to the age of 18. Slaves were not allowed to wear long hair.

Mackay's Extraordinary Popular Delusions has a chapter on the influence of politics and religion on the hair and beard. It says that at one time, long hair was the symbol of sovereignty in Europe and that, among the successors of Clovis, it was the exclusive privilege of the royal family to have their hair long and curled. When England was invaded by William the Conqueror, the English spies reported that the enemy "did almost seem to be priests, because they had all their face and both their lips shaven." The clergy for some time during the Middle Ages attempted to enforce decrees against long hair for men, using for text St. Paul's declaration in 1 Corinthians that "long hair is a dishonor to a man and a glory to a woman."

Car Badly Damaged 2 Hurt Badly, One Escapes in Auto Accident on 9-W

At 9:45 o'clock this morning the Essex sedan of Eric Swanson and wife, of Brooklyn, boarders at Bloomington, was badly damaged in collision with a Chevrolet truck driven by John Beesmer, of Kerhonkson, on the Rosendale boulevard, three miles from Kingston.

The Swanson sedan, according to the sheriff's office, had been stalled by wet ignition wires due to a sudden rainfall. The truck crashed into the rear of the Swanson car, doing extensive damage to the stalled vehicle.

Both the Swansons were unhurt, but Mrs. Beesmer, riding in the truck, was slightly injured.

There has been the bitterest kind of disappointment because of President Roosevelt's going on during the past three years—everybody knows that, and expressions of it can be heard on every hand. He was widely acclaimed as the Moses who was to lead us all to the Promised Land. Millions voted for him in 1932 who would not dream of voting for him in 1936. He has been the worst fizzle in recent history.—Lowell, Mass., Courier-Citizen.

Three people were injured at 10:30 o'clock this morning on route 9-W, Port Ewen, near the River road, when cars driven by T. J. Boyle, of Flushing, L. I., and John Rochetti, of Brooklyn, were in collision.

Both cars were badly damaged. The condition of Boyle and his wife are said to be very serious, and X-rays were taken of Emanuel Favoloco, of New York City, a passenger in the Rochetti car, to determine the extent of his injuries. Miss M. Eakins, of Bearsville, a passenger in the Boyle car escaped injury, as did Rochetti.

Sheriff Moynaux, investigating the crash, said the traffic was the heaviest on 9-W he has ever seen.

The extensive flint collection on the grounds of the State Experiment Station at Geneva, and the proximity of Geneva to the large collection of nut varieties at the College of Agriculture at Ithaca were important factors in influencing officials of the Northern Nut Growers Association to decide upon the station as the place to hold their twenty-seventh annual meeting September 14 to 18.

Golden Jubilee of The Winnisook Club

This year marks the Golden Jubilee of Winnisook Club, Olivera, Slide Mountain and this week-end some 100 members and friends are gathered at the Lodge to celebrate the event. This club with fifty years of unbroken existence is one of the oldest organizations of its kind in the Catskills.

The conception of such a club originated with the late Hon. Thomas E. Benedict who discovered the site which he had described to them in some glowing terms and they at once planned to form a club and erect a camp of some sort. En route from the Indian driver of the wagon related the legend of Chief Winnisook, his romance with Gertrude Molyneux and his tragic death. That evening the gentlemen agreed to name the lodge and club in honor of the chieftain whose council fires had so often lighted the valley below.

The club was formally organized at this time with Judge Alton B. Parker elected as its first president. Among the early members well known to the people of Kingston were the Hon. Charles M. Preston, John W. Searing, William S. Rodie, the Hon. Isaac N. Maynard, Edward Youmans, Joseph W. Hiseley, Charles B. Post, Thomas G. Evans, Charles R. Hall, Frederick J. R. Clarke, Charles A. Shultz, and James W. Hinkley of Poughkeepsie.

William A. Warren of Hurley is now president of the club with Robert R. Rodie of Kingston, vice-president, and Frederick P. Moore of New York city, secretary-treasurer.

In connection with the Golden Jubilee which is being observed this week-end, special services and an entertainment are being held. Last evening an amateur entertainment was given in the Lodge. Today there is a tennis tournament which will be followed tonight by the annual dinner, when the Lodge will be decorated in keeping with the occasion. Tomorrow a new entrance gateway will be dedicated. This has been given to the club by Frederick P. Moore, who has served as secretary-treasurer for the past twenty-six years. This ceremony will be followed by a church service in the Lodge conducted by the Very Rev. Charles S. Lewis, S. T. D., Dean of All Saints Cathedral, Albany. As a boy Dean Lewis spent his summers in the vicinity of Winnisook and his father conducted services at the club.

Edwin D. Shultz of Albany, Douglas Rodie of New York city and Robert R. Rodie of this city are the committee who have arranged the Golden Jubilee.

Among those returning for the celebration are the wives of two charter members, Mrs. Charles M. Preston of Mill street, and Mrs. John W. BETTER THAN DICTATOR.

Another dictatorship has been established in Europe. Premier John Metaxas of Greece has declared a dictatorship "under the auspices of King George II." The first acts marking the new regime were the dissolving of the legislative body, the declaration of martial law and the postponement "indefinitely" of all elections. The action was forced,
 says the Greek government, by the discovery of a Communist plot. This consisted of a threatened general strike, called by Communists in protest against the government's decision for compulsory arbitration in all labor disputes. Wage scales were also involved.

Of such problems are dictatorships
 born in Europe today. All present
 hope of popular government vanishes with them. Fear and violence become acute. Compromise and cooperation become for the time impossible. There is a lesson for Americans in every such event in the Old World. Here political factions criticize and squabble. Voters choose sides, intelligently or unintelligently. Election days roll around and executives and lawmakers are chosen. Clumsy and inefficient? Not so much so as we sometimes think. But even if it were, ours is a system infinitely
 preferable to one of martial law, no
 representative Congress, no elections
 and no freedom.

HOROSCOPE COWNS.

One of the famous Paris dressmakers will have an astrologer cast
 the horoscopes of his customers, and will then design gowns to harmonize
 with the "soul colors" of his clients.
 Another one is decorating her evening gowns with celestial symbols.
 Paris, it is plain, is going in for the stars in a big way. But suppose the soul colors do not harmonize with the physical features of the lady who is to wear the gown? A red-haired lady, for instance, with hazel eyes
 and creamy skin might be quite wonderful in the green of Sagittarius—
 velvet for example, with old ivory lace. She might even wear the deep old reds of Capricorn and get away with it. But if she had the misfortune—with that coloring—to be born in April, would she really
 be like to appear in the brilliant red
 of Aries? Then there's the poor brunnette born under Libra, the opalescent tints of which would leave her cold, washed-out and a little hard,
 no matter how warm her soul and
 vivid her own coloring.

This is pretty occult stuff—too deep, doubtless, for an editor or a dressmaker. But there was once an old sage named Paracelsus who went in heavily for all this stuff,
 then called Magic. He said astrological influence was only one-fifth of a life. Heredity, environment, education and karma—the latter meaning spiritual cause and effect—were,
 if memory serves, the other four.
 None could be overlooked in a balanced life. Maybe the dressmakers need to read along this line—or maybe they have already done that. The comforting thing about Paris styles is that they change. Whatever the effect of the soul color this year,
 next season the customer may be given what's becoming to the outer woman.

LIPSON'S SUCCESSOR.

Most of us still think of genial
 old Sir Thomas Lipson in connection with yacht races for the America's Cup. Apparently we are destined to become familiar with the new contender who has taken over the late Lipson's sporting determination to keep on trying until victory is achieved. At any rate, it is reported from London that the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes is ready to issue
 a challenge for the America's Cup
 by nominating T. O. M. Sopwith's
 new J-Class Endeavor II for the sixteenth British attempt to win the famous trophy. If the challenge comes, the race will probably take place in September, 1937, off Newport, R. I. The American defender

would be built and owned by a syndicate, as in 1934.

The America Cup Races have been going on since 1851, when the Royal Yacht Squadron offered a trophy for a race around the Isle of Wight.
 That race was open to all yachts
 and there was no time limit. The America beat its closest competitor
 by 18 minutes and brought the cup home with it. In recent years the rules governing the race have been strict, with a time limit for the course marked and definite specifications for the construction of the yachts. There have been races which seemed more technical than sportsmanlike to many Americans.
 But the British remain undiscour-
 aged, so there is sport ahead.

HOT DOG STRIKE

A group of 35 boys between the ages of 14 and 17 who serve hot dogs to curb customers won a strike
 the other day in Newark, N. J.
 They had been paid $3 a week for a seven-day, 70-hour week. They demanded—and have been promised—$5 for a six-day, 48-hour week.

A hot-dog-curb-service strike
 sounds funny, but it really isn't.
 Many a boy is better off for a part-
 time vacation job of 12 or 15 hours,
 for two or three dollars a week. It gives him a little spending money
 for the summer and sets something aside for the new clothes he has to have when school begins. But keeping a boy on the job for seventy hours a week for three dollars is a very different kettle of fish. It means too long a day for a growing boy to keep at attention. It means no vacation whatever. After all,
 even five dollars a week for 48 hours
 isn't exactly what might be called either a part-time job or a living wage.

ABOUT TUBERCULOSIS.

While heart disease stands first
 as a cause of death, there is one ailment that causes more deaths between the ages of 15 and 45 years
 than even heart disease.
 "Statistics show that one in every fourteen deaths is due to some form of tuberculosis. It is one of the great tragedies of the disease that it attacks young people, those who are embarking on professional careers
 after years of costly preparation, wage earners who are just beginning to raise a family of dependents."

Dr. Allen S. Johnson in Hygiene gives some valuable facts as to what parents should know about tuberculosis.
 "Tuberculosis is not handed down
 or inherited but if the young child
 is in constant contact with a parent or relative who has tuberculosis in a contagious form (an active tuberculosis of the lungs or open surgical tuberculosis conditions) he is almost sure to become infected with the germs which they spread."
 "Unfortunately the child may not show the early symptoms of tuberculosis, and appear healthy, only a
 "skin test" with tuberculin revealing the fact that he has been exposed to the germ of tuberculosis.
 These children may grow up to be healthy adults in whom pulmonary tuberculosis never develops; but in later years the disease may develop
 in a certain number because overwork or poor hygiene, or other factors not fully understood have broken down their resistance to the infection which has smoldered in their chests since childhood.

"Failure to gain weight at the normal rate when there is no obvious or reasonable explanation
 should make one suspicious of a smoldering tuberculous infection in a child. Often failure to gain weight follows what has been called an attack of grip whereas this represents the child's first infection
 with the germ of tuberculosis."
 "What advice to parents is given by Dr. Johnson?
 "First, keep children away from all possible sources of infection—a relative or anyone in the home with a chronic cough. Second, avoiding milk from tuberculous cattle.
 Third, seeing that the child's weight
 is kept up to normal by good food
 and proper rest.
 Finally, the child should be examined by the skin test and X-ray
 which are simple and harmless."
 This is certainly sound and timely advice to all parents to prevent "the thief in the night" from attacking
 their children.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance
 thought teaching school at Ashboro
 would be a simple and relatively pleasant springboard for her budding career. The winter she brought her first teaching assistant experiences, however, and she is already looking forward eagerly to the close of school. Now Mrs. Tyler, bachelor and lover of strength to Carol tells her that Blake Thornton,
 who was an advertising
 agency in Atlanta, is to be paid
 of honor at a dinner Ben is giving.
 Perhaps, Carol thinks, she may involve Blake enough for him to give her a job.

Chapter 20 BESIEGING BLAKE

THERE were eight people at Ben's
 dinner party: Alice and Tom,
 Janet Malone, Mildred Harbin and Carol; Blake Thornton and Ben and Andy Tyler. They had cocktails at the Tyler's, then drove to the country club for dinner.

Carol found herself remembering
 the September dance, and Denis.
 September was dim and unreal now,
 and Denis was a man she'd known once. She hadn't heard from him in two months, and the rift had been so inevitable that its existence scarcely mattered. She had made the break herself, in January.

"This has been too good to kill by inches, Denis," she wrote. "So I'm not going to write again. I could make you a pretty, tearful valdieutory, but it was too good for that,
 too, Carry on, my darling. . . ."

The letter had evoked a swift, vehement protest, because the prospect of farewell was an artificial stimulus to a fading affair, but she had kept her word. And Denis hadn't written again because he knew she was right.

Blake Thornton was saying: "You
 don't live here, do you, Miss Torrance?"

She left Denis and came back to the party. "No, Meredith. I'm teaching history and French in the high school."

She rather liked Blake Thornton,
 but he was hardly the type to "waggle" a job from: if he gave you a job it would be because he thought you could do it. He was thirty-three or four, she decided; thin and blond
 and not very tall, and there were deep lines on either side of his mouth. His eyes were as cold and gray as slate, and his speech was crisper than that of most Southern men.

"I didn't think I'd ever met you—
 or heard of you—and I've been here several times." He smiled, and his eyes warmed a little. "Teaching
 must call for infinite tact."

"And patience. More of both than I possess. I'm afraid. I'm clearing out after this year; I've tempted Providence long enough."

"That's rather a pity, isn't it? After all, somebody has to pioneer."
 She shook her head. "It takes sterner stuff than I'm made of. I've had one narrow escape already; next year I wouldn't be so lucky."
 His eyes questioned the nature of her escape, but she ignored the question. He said curiously: "And when you clear out, where do you go then?"

The talk was following the path
 she would have chosen, but instinct
 warned her against hurrying it.

"I wish I knew. I'm stopping in Atlanta on the way home, to talk to a friend in personnel work. She may have something to suggest, although I doubt it." She changed the subject quickly, before he should think she was soliciting his help.

"Tell me about Atlanta—how it's making the grade, I haven't spent any time there in five years, and the place has rather grown beyond my recognition."

He frowned. "It's beginning to breathe again—whether from returning consciousness or artificial respiration, God alone knows."

"What do you think?"

"I think it's a little of both." She saw his eyes looking and weighing
 her, and she looked calmly
 back at him. It was a relief to talk to an intelligent man and know that sexual attraction was outside the picture. There was nothing of that in Blake Thornton's quiet look and she was glad; she was still bruised
 and sore from her encounters with Denis and Mike, and she wanted to forget that side of existence until her spirit healed.

A LICE cut into their talk from Blake Thornton's left.
 "Blake, darling, you've ignored
 me all evening. I'm getting violently jealous."

Carol sighed with relief. After a round with Alice, she thought, I'll soon to him like Minerva herself.
 She turned to Ben, who was grinning inquiringly.

"Making any time?"

"Not yet. I think it's better strategy not to try too hard."

He nodded emphatically. "He's a canny duck; his company is one of

pleases apparently are unaware of problems which affect vitally the welfare of the corporation from which they gain their livelihood."

"In the hope that such a condition can be changed, at least in part,
 this little news pamphlet is born. It will be published from time to time,
 as circumstances warrant and as matters of interest to men and management present themselves."

"There are more than 45,000 railroad employees in New York state.
 If these 45,000 people could be welded into an army of crusaders for the cause of the railroad, real prosperity for the steam carriers
 would be greatly advanced."

"In the main, the reason for reduced railroad business and employ-

A novel feature introduced recent-

 field is the "fraternity chain," to whose possibilities Granges are responding in enthusiastic fashion. Already the idea is going strong in New York. Local Granges are supplied with one link of an imaginary
 chain and as delegations visit neighboring Granges the various local links are joined until each county chain becomes a unit. The idea is then extended until all the counties
 are linked up and thus a complete
 State Grange chain is made possible;
 with an opportunity found for in-serting links from the Juvenile branch, which embraces the boys and girls in Grange families.

A great coming event of interest

 days next November, beginning Wed-

 an expected attendance of from 12,000 to 15,000 members.

TAMMANY'S FARM RELIEF

TALKS TO PARENTS

Complete Personality
 By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
 As long as mankind has existed,
 individuals have been different one from another. It seems impossible to reduce the human race to the uniformity of ants in an ant-hill. Indeed,
 life would scarcely seem worth living if survival were its one aim.

This being the case, a uniform education for everyone cannot be de-desirable. There will always be children who need practical training,
 others who would be benefited by the humanities. The present tendency is to give practical subjects to the boy or girl who wants them and is most interested in them, artistic and literary courses to the youngster who is of an academic and literary turn of mind.

Such a system, however, takes no
 thought for the real purpose of education, nor for the meaning of culture. The whole object of training children should be to cultivate rounded and complete personalities. Some schools have begun to see the need of this kind of development, and are instituting what they call "personality courses" in the high schools. The training should, however, start much earlier, in the home if possible, before school days begin.

The practical, matter-of-fact child
 who goes in for utilitarian subjects,
 needs to have his imagination and his artistic tastes cultivated. The dreamer should be stimulated along mechanical and scientific lines. In early childhood such training is possible,
 whereas by the time a child has reached high school he is set in the mold of his personal preferences, and
 no longer open to suggestion.

Give the child who wants only pictures of engines and boats and buildings, or stories of discovery and invention, a taste of fairy-tales, adventure, history and art. Try to interest
 the dreamer in the romance of science and machinery. It can be done
 if started soon enough.

The Boy Scout motto, "Be Prepared" is one that stands the hostess
 in good stead, too. A larger well filled in advance of the guests' arrival will give her leisure to enjoy
 her company and will maintain her reputation for hospitality as well.
 Prepare as much food as you can beforehand, choosing items for meals
 and for snacks that have good keeping qualities.

 will attempt to put a political party of real proportions into the field by 1940.

So widely is the idea accepted
 that some are looking for a quiet drive on state legislatures
 beginning this winter to ease
 the way for third party movements. The long dominance of the two major parties has made potential life somewhat of a closed corporation in many states.

Merely a declaration that "we want to put a party in the field" is not enough. Some states require long petitions representing a certain per-

 party entry. Often a certain propo-

 every county, or at least every con-

Fashions and Household Hints for Women

Sow Perennials Now For Next Year's Bloom

Perennial seed should be planted as soon as possible if you are to have seedlings to set out this fall. Next season seems a long way off to be preparing for during these hot weeks, but the job isn't a difficult one, and it will repay you many times the effort you put forth now.

In making a bed for perennial seed, take precautions to protect the tiny shoots from the sun and hot winds. If you have a cold frame which is not in use, it will serve nicely until they have grown enough to stand transplanting. The sides will protect from some of the sun, and most of the wind, and if you construct a lattice from ordinary plaster slats, placing them about two inches apart, and then setting on top of the frame, the danger of too much sun will be eliminated.

If the frame was used last spring, the soil might need replacing, and certainly will need much cleaning. It appears to be in good condition, clean out all vines, pieces of wood and hard lumps of earth; then, sift it with a coarse screen. When you are ready to plant, sift the top layer again with a fine screen. This will assure the seeds close contact with the soil, and result in speedy germination.

It will be necessary to watch the perennials more closely than you did your annuals last spring, because of the weather and the fact that they germinate more slowly. If your seed bed is kept sufficiently moist, little difficulty will be experienced. During extremely hot days, cover the frame or bed with a cloth or newspaper.

AFTER SOWING SEEDS IN COLD-FRAME COVER WITH LATTICE TO BREAK DIRECT RAYS OF SUN.

What perennials to plant? You will have to be the judge, and your garden needs will provide the answer.

For the early summer display delphinium, pyrethrum, galliardias, sweet Williams, campanulas and foxgloves, as well as the lovely columbines should be planted. The hollyhocks and hardy phlox are best for midsummer, and should not be neglected. As this season lacks something in color from the earlier summer, and you should provide a few annuals to supplement the perennials.

MAKE YOUR NEW LAWN FROM AUGUST TO MID-SEPTEMBER

In the cool, moist fall weather grass seed germinates quickly, and steady, sustained growth takes place, resulting in a strong root growth and stooling, rather than an excessive blade growth. Weeds are not so troublesome as in spring-seeded lawns, because few weed seeds germinate in the fall. That is why it is easier and more economical to make your new lawn at this time.

The best time to seed is from mid-August to mid-September, the earlier during this period the better, so as to give the grass a chance to develop as strong a root system and top growth as possible before cold weather. In southern states such as Virginia and Kentucky, this period may be extended to the end of September.

The early stage in the growth of grass is the most crucial, and the young plants must have plenty of suitable nourishment available in the soil. So be sure to incorporate a complete balanced plant food in the seedbed.

Spade the soil to a depth of six inches and pulverize thoroughly. If the soil is clayey, incorporate sand in the top few inches. If too sandy, use clay and peat moss to give it better retentive power.

Apply a complete balanced plant food over the pulverized soil at the rate of four pounds per 100 square feet. Get it on evenly and lightly work into the soil. A plant food spreader is handy for both feeding and seeding the lawn.

Wait one day after applying plant food and seed with good grass seed. Make sure you have good seed. It's always the most economical. Use 4 to 5 pounds per 1,000 square feet. If you sow by hand put half on crosswise and the other half on lengthwise.

Roll to embed and to insure perfect contact between seed and soil. A tamper or wide board can be used on small areas if a roller is not available. This step is essential and should not be overlooked.

Water thoroughly using a very fine spray. Water daily (or twice daily, if necessary to keep soil moist) until seed germination is complete—three to four weeks. Thereafter soak lawn to a depth of five or six inches once or twice a week.

Now the lawn when the grass has reached a height of three to three and one-half inches. Be sure to have the mower newly sharpened so that it will not pull up the young grass. Set the mower as high as it will cut. Continue regular cutting and roll from slope growth.

The Pressed By Rolling

If you haven't time to press the lawn your husband wants to wear in the morning, roll it up tightly and leave it over night. All the little creases will come out.

USE VARYING COLORS FOR HOT WEATHER AID

You can help your family through the hot weather—and save yourself some work—by considering little details of color and selectivity. Use, for instance, an orange oilcloth table cover and paper napkins to match for breakfast. For lunch, the same things in green, saving the linen for evening.

Food coloring can be made attractive, too. Two kinds of melon—honey dew and cantaloupe—scooped into tiny balls and served in a glass garnished with mint leaves comprise a bright dessert.

No More Bashful Brides
Lexington, Ky. (AP)—Blushing bridegrooms, says Miss Gertrude Flora, deputy county clerk, are now more numerous in her experience than blushing brides. There was a time, she says, when brides were bashful and backward as they applied for marriage licenses; but now they are calm and collected while prospective husbands get the jitters.

Cameos are Copied on Leather Clips
Paris (AP)—Even cameos may be copied in versatile leathers. Some new oval shaped clips and brooches are leather covered and decorated with the finest of leather flowers in multi-color, clustered together in true cameo arrangement.

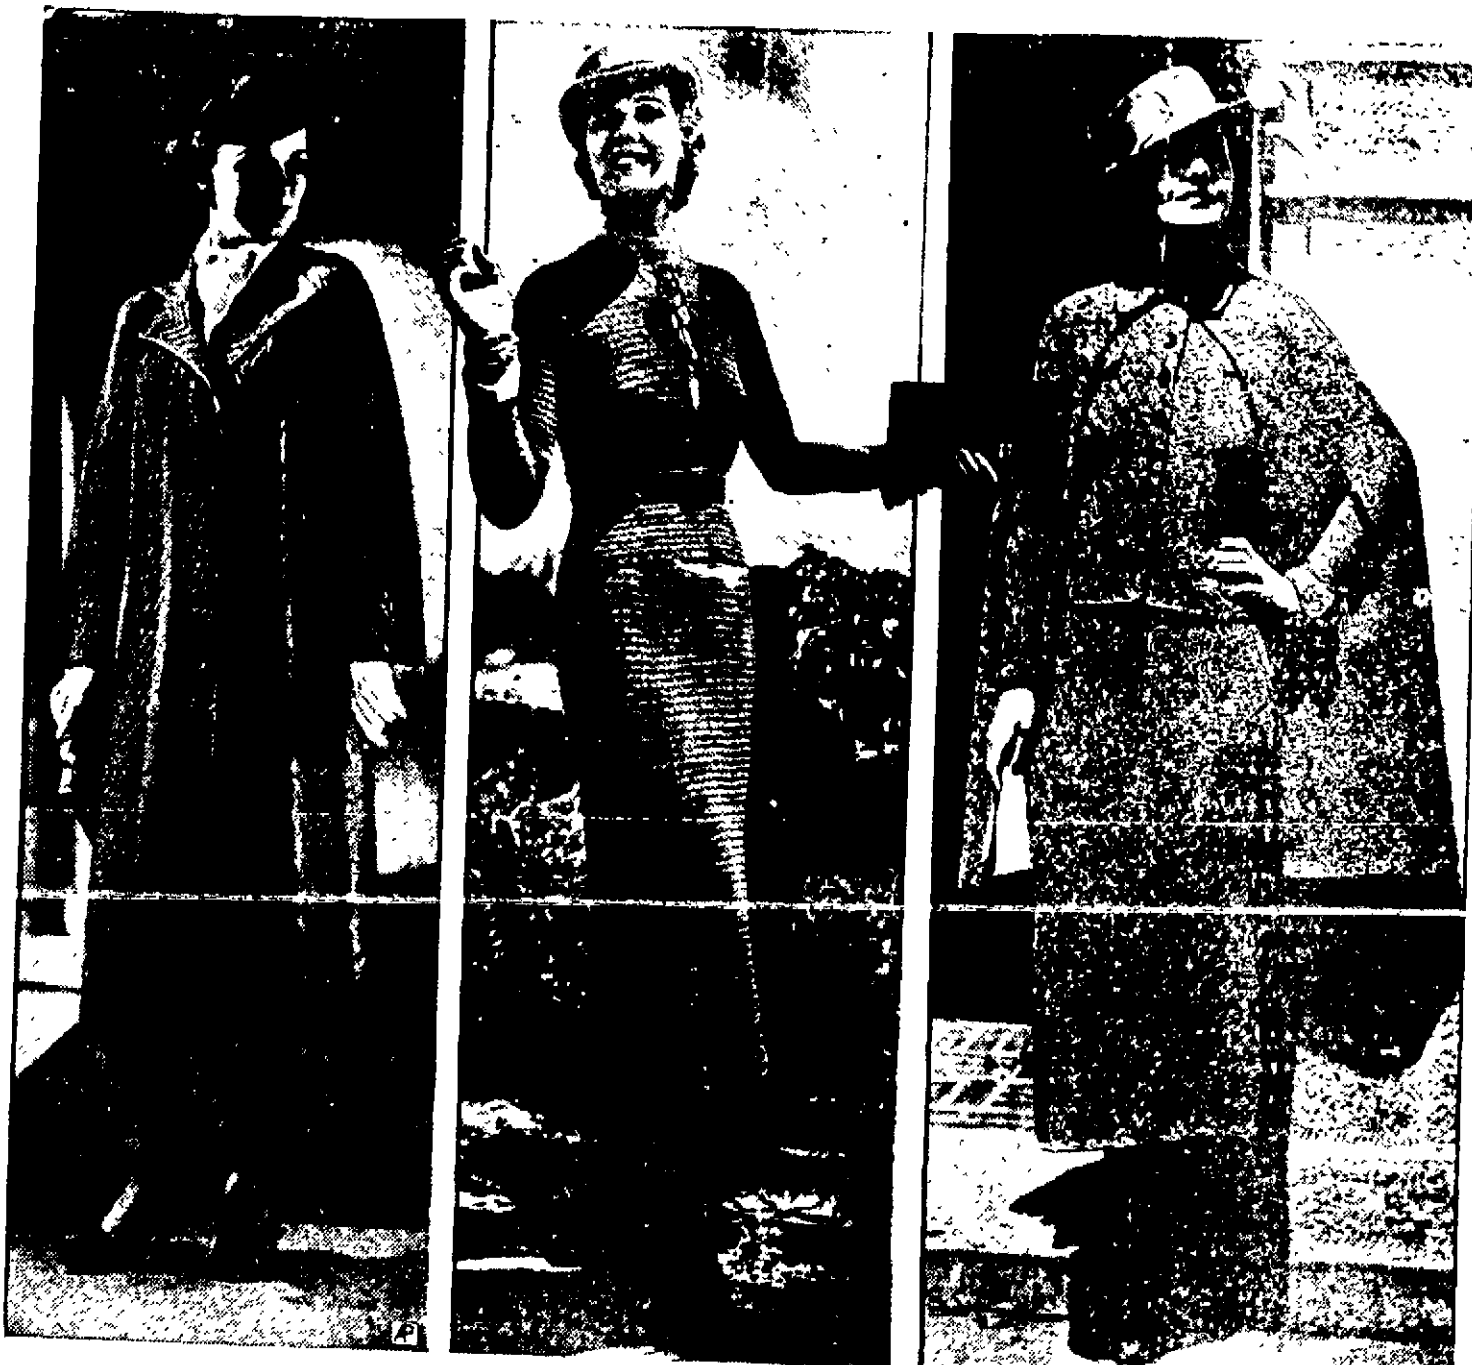

For Cleaning Trays
When cleaning aluminum trays use any mild cleanser or good silver polish. First and last wash the trays in hot suds, dry them with paper napkins, and use a dash of ammonia to keep your hands from discoloring.

Move Irises
You can move irises now. Top growth has been completed, and new rootlets are being developed. Remember that they like plenty of sun and that the bearded ones prefer an alkaline soil, while the beardless varieties lean more to the acid soil.

The best way to restore a fading bed or border of annuals, is to prune it, cutting off faded flowers and stems. This will give the roots a chance to provide more nourishment to the parts of the plant which will bloom again.

Half a cup each of vinegar and brown sugar added to the water in which you are boiling a ham will greatly improve its taste.

Knit Clothes Win Spotlight For Early Fall

Knitted clothes, in a wide variety of design, go to town as well as country this fall. The sports coat at left is hand knitted in herringbone-ribbed effect of cashmere wool yarn in a soft light cardinal brown shade. It is fastened with big brown buttons and worn with accessories of the same color. The two-piece knitted frock in the center of soft green yarn has a slender goied skirt and a simple top laced with a knitted cord over an ecru-colored knitted vestee.

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York (AP)—Knitted notions add new spice to early fall fashions.

American designers have evolved the greatest number of new ideas in knitted clothes—both hand and machine done—they have shown in years. Knitted sports clothes, two-piece dresses, suits, capes, coats and hats are ready to go to school, to market, to the golf links or country club. They are made of new yarns knitted in new stitches, and generally given a new trim silhouette which aims at the same smartness as that of fabric clothes.

Seek Tweed Effect

Tweed yarns which when knit gives the same mottled effect as English tweeds; cabled, crinkled and crepe yarns and soft smooth twists are used for the new things in addition to the standard yarns. Boucle, ribbed, twiggled and herringbone weaves are achieved, both by knitting needles and machines. All the colors which brighten the fall fashion picture—green, wine reds, russets, browns and tweed-like black and grey mixtures—are seen.

Checked and plaid weaves appear in hand knitted sweater coats to top sports frocks for a country week-end this fall. Ribbed and herringbone weaves make longer coats ready for motoring or a fall racing meet.

Wide Variety Available

Knitted suits are designed with fitted bell-hop tops or Norfolk or fitted schoolgirl jackets. Some of them are topped by a dashing hip-length cape knitted of the same yarn to make an ensemble. Two-piece knitted dresses—smart for school wear or spectator sports—are generally designed with slender skirts and simple belted bodices having a bright Ascot scarf tucked into the neck. Slender one-piece dresses with vests of a contrasting color are shown too.

Machines have produced a variety of knitted clothes, many of which resemble cloth, such as flannel. Leather belts and buttons of a contrasting color, metal clips and novelty buttons add to their chic.

Knitted hats—borets and toques—top a number of the outfits.

Package Receiver

You can solve the problem of what to do with small packages that are delivered when you are away from home by having a receiving box built in the wall. One home had such a unit built in between the service porch and breakfast room. It measured about 12 by 14 inches. It consisted of two cast-iron frames, and had an inner and outer door, the outer door locking automatically when closed from the outside—opening only from the inside. When you are expecting a package, the outer door is left ajar. When the package has been placed inside, the door is closed. When you want to remove the package, open the door from the inside.

Pumice stone is useful in removing cigarette and ink stains from the fingers. Simply wet the stone and rub it against the stain.

RINSE OUT YOUR SUIT AFTER SEA BATHING

Rinse out your bathing suit in fresh water after you have been to the beach. It helps prevent the salt water from rotting the material. The most effective way to wash the overexposed members of the family is to soak the garments in tepid water for half an hour before putting them in the soapy water.

Stake Plants.

If you are having trouble with drooping plants, stake them. This will prevent the wind from bending them to the ground, and the effect on the appearance of the garden will be worth your while. All tall growing flowers should be staked. Use tiny bamboo stakes, or you can make them at home yourself.

Sewing Leaders Attend School

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 15.—At a training school conducted by the New York state college of home economics, WPA sewing project supervisors gathered new ideas for fall programs and learned new ways to cut down on production costs.

They used scraps left over from making everything from babies' layettes to men's suits, and turned the scraps into useful articles for distribution through welfare organizations. Children's sunsuits, warm bed room slippers, stylish collars and cuffs were made by the supervisors from bits of cotton, flannel and unbleached muslin, according to Mrs. Julia Strahan of the college extension staff in charge of the training school, who pointed out that every article made must justify the amount of time spent on it.

Using materials from the federal surplus commodities corporation, the WPA sewing project aims to train workers not only in the fundamentals of cutting and finishing but also to turn out durable garments in a short time, according to Ann Garrity, assistant director of the women's and professional projects of the WPA.

In addition to Miss Garrity, four district sewing supervisors were present: Miss Grace Drury, Ithaca; Mrs. Virginia Sanderson, Lockport; Adrianna Vander Kamp, Albany; and Mrs. Mary V. McGowan, White Plains.

The sewing room supervisors present were: Ernestine Donnelly, Augusta; Ethel Devenport, Herkimer; Agnes Cullinan, Oswego; Mrs. Delaney, Ogdensburg; Mrs. Dagmar Anderson, Jamestown; Mrs. Loren Thompson, North Tonawanda; Mrs. Irene Stevens, Batavia; Mrs. Sara Whelan, White Plains; Mrs. Kate Bulson, Nyack; Mrs. Jeanette Marks, Middletown; Mary Mulcahy, Poughkeepsie; Mrs. Helen McCarthy, Avon; and Mrs. Ethel Glumpe, Mount Morris.

IT'S TIME TO SOW GRASS SEED, MAKE LAWN REPAIRS.

The best time to sow lawn seed is the middle of August or a short time thereafter. There are very good reasons for this choice of time, and the lawnmower will do well to heed them, if he wants to avoid trouble later. By planting a lawn now, the seed will get a chance to germinate early, and make a considerable growth during the cool days of fall, thus providing a healthy mat of well advanced turf to start with in the spring.

An even better reason for planting in the late summer or fall is that it will eliminate many weeds which would normally take root with lawn seed planted in the spring. Most weed seeds germinate in the spring, in spite of the fact that they have matured and found sanctuaries in your lawn seeded in summer and fall. By giving the lawn seed a chance to form an early turf, which will wake up early in the spring and renew its growth vigorously, you will choke out many of the weeds which must wait until spring to germinate.

Starting early and maintaining a vigorous growth is the secret of lawn making. To assist in this, the gardener will be well to provide his lawn with applications of plant food to spur on the growth. When the lawn is made an application of 4 pounds for 100 square feet of area is recommended. Work the plant food into the top soil, wait a day, and then sow seed, rolling the bed lightly, and watering with a fine spray. In the spring an additional 2 pounds of plant food should be applied, and in many cases a second application is recommended, especially on bare spots.

Paper Drapes Give Neat Effect

Dashing Textures Imitate Cloth

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine for The Freeman.

Making draperies? You won't need needles and pins and long attached seams. With scissors, hammer and tacks, you can make not only charming draperies, but an elaborate valance as well.

Paper is the new drapery material—but paper with the look and feel of expensive fabrics. It is not only easy to handle, but it doesn't so limp in rain or over a air.

For the week-end cottage, the new paper draperies give a quick dash of color. For camps and "rumpus rooms," there are homelike effects.

But most surprising are the more elegant papers. Some are scattered over with tiny shiny like silver. Another, soft as silk, is charming in white glided with silver—admirable in combination with a solid color fabric-backed paper for valance or edging.

Edgings can be glued or stitched in place—with no limit to the possibilities of design, with scalloping, stitching and cutting of the edges.

Brown cellulose film backed with open weave fabric with a tiny mesh, makes attractive summer draperies edged with white and caught here with tiny white streamers. And you can have a

Peru's Next First Lady May Be An English Woman

Rio de Janeiro (AP)—Mrs. Grace Flanders de Prado, an accomplished English woman, would become first lady of Peru if her husband, candidate of 12 out of a total of 14 parties, should win the presidential elections in October.

Minister Benedito Alois Maselli, a naval officer, married the couple soon after Jorge Prado had been made Peru's first ambassador to Brazil in 1934. Sir William Smead, British ambassador, and Jose Cardon, minister, were official witnesses at the brilliant ceremony.

Recently, as the ambassador prepared to go home to conduct a stamp drive for two or three months stay in Sussex, England, she expressed concern at the strenuous career of office which must be her husband's if he

"I really think the job of president must be very hard and tiring," she said. "And it seems that no matter how hard a president works, he is always criticized, don't you think?" Her emerald-blue eyes twinkled as she confessed she was brunking up on Spanish and hoped to greet her husband and his countrymen in their native language when she arrives in Lima late in the fall.

Mrs. Prado's design for living would include a country house, music and sports, says Prado. She is considered an expert horsewoman and huntsress, in keeping with the traditions of her Lincolnshire family of warriors and explorers.

Mrs. Prado is a great-granddaughter of Samuel Flanders, one of England's first colonists of Australia and Tasmania.

It was because of a Peruvian president's belief that Prado went to England and met the girl who was to become his wife.

"If of nervous temperament," writes a motor expert, "you must be prepared to go through a good deal while learning to drive a car." Including, possibly, the windshield.

McTavish was riding in a taxi when the driver lost control of the vehicle, which was traveling at a very rapid rate of speed.

McTavish (yelling, in evident concern)—Hey, mon, what is the matter?

Driver—Darned if I know. I can't stop her!

McTavish—Well, for heaven's sake, at least shut the bloomin' meter off quick!

Originally the earth was a gaseous mass, we are told. And every four years it seems intent on getting back to its original state.

Her car stalled at the corner. The traffic light changed red, yellow, green; red, yellow, green, etc. The polite policeman stepped up beside her car and said: "What's the matter, lady, ain't we got any colors you like?"

The only explanation the readers of the papers can give for some car drivers being in such a hurry is that they want to get there in time for the accident.

Officer—Why were you speeding, Man (humbly)—I wasn't speeding. I was just trying to pass the man who bought my old car.

Of course the modern automobile goes faster than the old gray mare did in father's day. But when you fed the old mare a bucketful of oats there was not a five-cents-a-gallon-tax on it.

Tourist—Who enforces the parking restrictions in this town? Brushville Native—Blondes, brunettes, and red-heads.

A local man says: "I'll never get over my fondness for horses, for I can doze off behind a whip-socket without the danger of waking up in a hospital."

Friend—Sleep well in the country? Man—First night I couldn't sleep at all. After that I hired a farmer boy to sit in my automobile and blow the horn all night. Then I got along fine.

Though you be one of the million hitched to the cart of care, Ride as your own position, driving and drawing fair; What though the road be dreary, fraught though each mile with guile? What though your eyes be weary?— Lift up your face and smile. Trial may come—well, let it! Worth for the worst was sent; Shall not to win offset it?—Coin of a man well spent! The night may not even be starry, but dawn shall be sweet erst-while. So trim up the lamp that you carry, and lift up your face and smile.

The Golfer (to young Jimmy)—If your father owed the grocer $18, the baker $12, and the butcher $20, how much would he have to pay them?
Jimmy—He wouldn't pay nothing; he'd move.

Friend—The hostess was furious when I upset a bottle of liquor on her rug.
Man—Was it her best rug?
Friend—No, her best liquor.

If you start out to dispute and argue every time some one says something to you that you don't approve, you'll get little else done, and you'll accomplish little outside of making yourself a nuisance.

Banana Water Lily
The so-called banana water lily which produces great bunches of tubers strongly resembling the familiar bunches of bananas to be found in fruit stores, was discovered by botanists in the coastal marshes of states bordering the Gulf of Mexico where it is said to furnish food for enormous numbers of wildfowl.

WINAGANS

"FLOATING COURTS" FOR ALASKA TRIALS

Judges Cover Districts on Coast Guard Cutters.

Washington. — The difficulties of administering justice in Alaska and how they are met with "floating courts" were described by Lieut. Commander Alfred Richmond of the coast guard, on his recent return to Washington from the territory.

It may be a year or so before a federal judge can reach many of the tiny villages in his district, Commander Richmond said, but most of the cases are minor and the delay "doesn't matter."

Informed by deputy marshals throughout his district of the dockets in the various settlements, the judge forwards to the treasury a request for a coast guard cutter to transport him from place to place. This granted, his work begins.

"He may come into a little town where there have been a few crimes since his last visit, go to the postoffice and open court," Commander Richmond explained.

"And, of course, when I say 'postoffice,' one mustn't get an idea that they are anything like the ones in this country. They just push a few boxes and mail bags aside and begin."

"Naturally, every one in the town turns out. It's one of the most exciting events they have."

"If there is no postoffice or other public building, the court is held on board the cutter."

Many of the cases involve sea otter fishing, which is a serious law violation. Most of the sea otters were killed by the Russians before United States colonization of Alaska, and it now is unlawful to take them at any time.

The usual plea, when that charge is made, is that the otter was not caught at all, but was found dead on the beach, the defendant merely happening along and recovering it.

Edward Keeps Corporal Rank He Won in France

King Edward VIII of England is a corporal in the regiment of St. Cyr, famous training school of officers of the French army, and has held this rank since October 20, 1926.

Ten years ago, as prince of Wales on a visit to France, the king expressed a desire to see the military college. During his visit he was presented with the woolen stripes, white gloves, and shako helmet with red and white feathers.

The commanding general, in saluting the new corporal, recalled the fact that the prince of Wales, although of royal birth, had borne arms in France during the World War like a simple soldier.

The prince replied by saying: "I know too well the great value that your Emperor Napoleon attached to the rank of 'Little Corporal,' given to him out of affection by the veterans of the guard, not to be touched by the title and to be proud of the woolen stripes which you have presented to me. Wearing them, I salute the traditional virtues of heroism and bravery, not only of Saint Cyr, but of the whole French army."

In mentioning the "traditional heroism" of the regiment of St. Cyr, he alluded to the practice of the officers trained in this school to go to battle wearing their white gloves. The observance of this tradition caused them heavy losses during the war.

MODES of the MOMENT

For a Campus Success

For week-end college dances, here is a gown of shimmering metalized black silk tulle designed to catch the eye of the stag line. It has the high molded bustline and slender waist characteristic of many of this fall's frocks and is finished with a little jeweled clip. This co-ed wears it with real gardenias clipped to her wrist and in her hair.

HOME-CANNED VEGETABLES

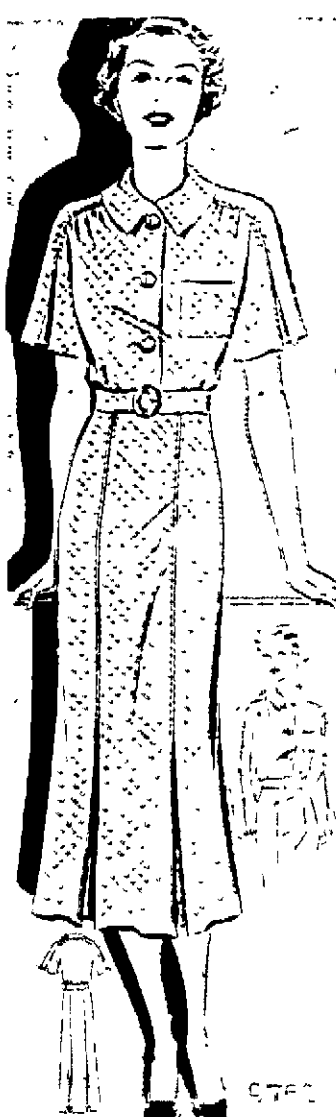

Good Things Made from Sweet Corn

Home-canned vegetables. What is handier for a quick meal, for salads or hot dishes, or when company comes? Peas, beans, and corn are the nation's choice. Boil string beans five minutes in enough water to cover, put in sterilized jars, and process 40 minutes in your pressure cooker, using 10 pounds pressure, 240 degrees F. Bring peas to a boil, then put in jars, and process 35 minutes under 10 pounds pressure, 240 degrees F. Put up corn, sweet corn, and corn whole kernels close to the cob, but do not use the milky pulp scraped from the cob. Cook for 15 minutes in moderate water. In the can it forms a dense mass and so may not cook thoroughly. To can corn, bring it to a boil in kettle, process 15 minutes in pressure cooker at 15 pounds, 250 degrees F. Make sweet corn 1-2 beans and 2-3 corn, or equal parts of each, and can same as corn. For corn relish, combine grains cut from nine medium-sized ears of corn, two medium-sized white onions, chopped, three red and three green peppers, seeded and chopped, one small cabbage, chopped. Boil one quart vinegar, one cup sugar, brown or granulated, one tablespoon salt, 1 1/2 table spoons dry mustard. Add vegetables, cook 20 to 30 minutes, and can.

Macao, Oldest Permanent China Coast Settlement

Macao is the oldest of all permanent foreign settlements on the China coast. Macao, spelled locally Macau, notes a writer in the New York Times, consists of a peninsula in the delta of the Canton river, and the islands of Coloman and Taipa. Its total area is approximately eleven square miles. The peninsula, located forty miles by water from the British Crown colony of Hong Kong, and eighty miles from Canton, is about two-and-a-half mile long and half a mile wide.

The occupation by the Portuguese dates from 1587, but some 350 years elapsed before China formally recognized Portugal's sovereignty rights. Without unseemly levity, it may be said that this is not to be considered a long delay in the transaction of Chinese affairs.

It is the claim of the Portuguese that they were the pioneers of European intercourse in Chinese waters. India and what is now the Federated Malay States were their stepping stones to the farther East. As the Portuguese were the first to inaugurate European trade in China, so were they the first among foreigners to earn the hatred, fear and contempt of the Chinese.

The methods they employed in settlement and trade brought about massacres and great loss of life on both sides, which for a time virtually ended foreign commerce in the South and directed it to settlements at Ningpo and elsewhere.

Say! who reads the ads anyway?

There they are, next to the play-by-play dope on the ball game, cutting off the news of So-and-So's engagement party so you have to jump clear to the middle of the next column to finish it. Those ads! You know who runs them, their signatures are on 'em—but who reads 'em anyway? The printer? That's right—but shucks, he's paid to! And the advertiser—sure, he reads them to see if the paper got the prices right. Who else? What's the great American ad-reader look like? Who reads the ads? Let's solve the mystery . . . and see!

This fellow's income is way above the average; there are not many like him, we'll admit. Retired from real estate last year, survived the depression nicely, thank you, and will be back from Bar Harbor in September. Gets a kick out of picking up $7 shirts for $2.79 by waiting for the sales. Reads the ads—not every day—but wouldn't think of buying without checking the price and quality against every value in the paper.

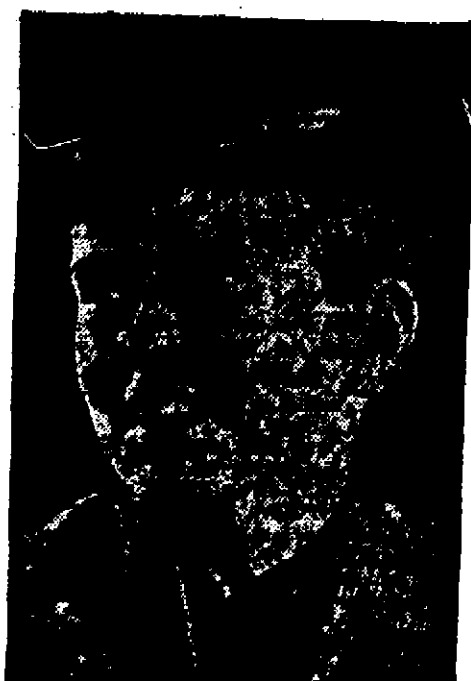

Remember her debut party? She'll be back at Smith's in the fall; right now she's pretty busy, what with the little car a Freeman ad helped sell her Dad, the places all the crowd goes to (they say the boys pick them from the Freeman), and the show her club gives every summer. To date she's tracked down material for costumes, arranged for tickets, and has practically closed a deal with a florist . . . all through the Freeman!

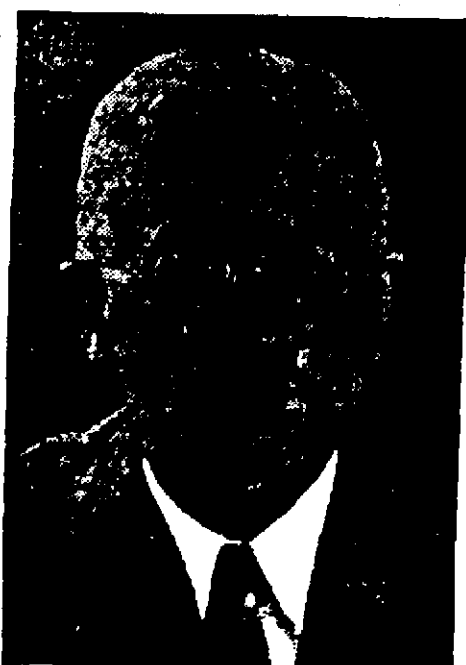

She likes to say that the children are grown up and out of the way now . . . but just watch her smile when she sees an ad for print wash frocks . . . size 2 to 6! Keeps a gift list that touches almost every day of the calendar, and half the dates are for children! Entertains a lot, too, and manages to belong to quite a few of the clubs. Proud of her home, and not a bit unwilling to take advantage of a bargain for it when the Freeman backs it up!

Here is a pretty complete little world, of course. Two children, a busy young husband, a new house . . . a little dominion that's pretty hard to crash. But she's made the Freeman a welcome intruder. Where else, she asks, would she find the same help in keeping a not-too-big budget straight . . . how else could she keep the house looking so newly furnished on so little . . . what other source would be so obliging about tipping her off on dozens of sales every day.

Still prefers the comb, but graduated into the ad reading class last year, when he decided he wanted a prep suit like the one his buddy, Charlie, got. Has since found quite a few things he's going to own some day. Sold on one make of bicycle right now, and a certain page of the Freeman has a way of popping up in a prominent place each night about the time that Dad's due home.

Belongs to a number of the city's service clubs, has kept a good business going for a number of years, and has a son who's going into the business some day soon. Makes a hobby of his place up at the lake, and won't let a gun or tackle ad out of his sight till he's read it all the way through. Finds the Freeman ads a good indication of business conditions in the city . . . as well as an effective medium for his own business.

Still in school, but looking forward to the day when he can buy his first car. Just at present quite satisfied with the boys he finds in sporting goods in the Freeman. Interested in what the well dressed young man should wear, and willing to do a little research in the subject. (It's whispered that she lives just a block or two away.) Working the family pretty hard for the trip west that he read about in an ad in the Freeman.

Had a tough time a couple of years ago. But he found a job through the "Skilled Workmen" section in the classifieds, and he and the wife have been reading the ads for one reason or another ever since. First it was the new furniture they needed when they stopped "doubling up" with her folks, then they needed a used car, and right now, since things look better at the plant and there's another nest egg laid away, they're looking for another house.

Pretty shrewd, this youngster! Kind of hated to leave the city and go back to the farm, but he's managed to combine the advantages of both places in just a few short years. First saw the radio he now owns in a Freeman ad. Installed a bathroom after a Freeman ad told him how inexpensive the fixtures would be. Found that he'd save time by trading in the old truck on a light pickup that a Kingston dealer advertised. And he saved money on the repair that he picked out of the want-ads!

Not too many free hours in her life! But the Freeman makes every one of them do double duty, when she starts off on a shopping tour. Clothes have to be smarter, to make up for hours spent in a uniform; cosmetics have to be better, to pass her rigid inspection; everything she buys must get by a country-like inspection on perfection. She learned back in her student days that she could rely on Freeman ads, and she's learned since that she can depend on them to save her off-duty time!

It's a date! And that, as any bright young member of Kingston High will tell you, means a trip through the Freeman ads. It may be for some new hose . . . for a place to have the white coat cleaned . . . for something really different to wear if it's a dance. But whatever the occasion, it's reason enough for a trip through the ad pages, especially when it's almost as much fun as a shopping expedition, and saves the strain on next week's allowance.

"You wouldn't catch me reading the ads . . . just a waste of my valuable time." Oh, oh! Fate was in a bad spot. Your photo must have gotten in here by mistake. Sorry . . . hey, wait a minute! . . . that tie you're so on . . . didn't we see that pattern advertised about a week ago? Uh-huh . . . well, we thought so!

The answer, of course, can be briefly told; everybody reads the ads each day in

Appleknockers and Colonial Meet at Williams Sunday

Artie Kaplan's Appleknockers are scheduled to meet Warren Smith's Colonials Sunday afternoon at Williams Lake. The Appleknockers and the Colonials have been rivals ever since softball was introduced in this city. These two teams met in the city championship playoff last year. They played two games, the Colonials winning the first, the last game ending in a tie. Kaplan has been waiting for a long time to even up the score and believes his team will be victorious in tomorrow's contest. However, Manager Smith's boys hold two league victories over the Appleknockers and hope to register another.

Kaplan will have Ben Toffel, fast ball artist, in the box while Harold Clayton will twirl for the Colonials. The Appleknockers will have Flemming, Rhymmer, McElrath and Newell in the infield, with Chilson, Adushefsky, Bush and Kelly in the outfield. The Colonials will line up with Slover, Haines, Winne and Culm doing infield duty and Weeks, Every, Smith and Scheline in the outer garden.

The game is slated for 3 o'clock and a large crowd is expected to attend.

 Longest Home Run.
 The Baptists met the Reformers last night at Forsyth Park, and when the dust had cleared away, the Comforters were ahead 6-4. The Comforters pounced on Houghtaling for five runs in the first inning and it looked for time as though they would win easily. In the third frame, Andy Dykes celebrated his first appearance in the Comforters lineup by polar out the longest home-run ever hit on the Forsyth diamond. Roy Weber connected for two triples. In the fourth inning the Albany Avenue bats began to make an impression on Houghtaling's pitching, lacing him for four runs on six hits, but his defense came to his rescue in time to avert disaster.

U.S. Again Supreme As the Huskie Crew Beats Europe's Best

By ALAN GOULD
 (Associated Press Sports Editor)
 Grunau, Germany, Aug. 15 (AP).—There have been many bright chapters written in American rowing annals by the collegiate crews which have kept the United States supreme in eight-oared rowing since the war, but none ever had a more courageous background than that marking the Washington Huskies' triumph over Europe's best crews in the climax of the 1936 Olympic naval battle.

There has been many a story written about "the old college try," but the youthful oarsmen from the Pacific northwest gave it dramatic reality by the fashion in which they surmounted discouraging obstacles to capture Olympic honors second only to track and field triumphs from the viewpoint of American sporting pride and interest.

Though there was no secret beforehand that the Huskies were not within several lengths of their best speed, it might as well be disclosed now that nearly half the crew, particularly the stroke, Don Hume, and the No. 3 man, Gordon Adam, were only one jump away from a sickbed, due to the effects of heavy colds.

"They were all so happy last night after gaining their big objective in coming from behind to win the way they did against the strongest king of opposition, they already are feeling lots better," said their coach, Al Ulbrickson, after turning the boys loose for the first time since they began training last October.

"They all were on the ragged edge because of conditions which we couldn't control. Hume was so sick for the better part of a week before the Olympic regatta I didn't think he could row at all, but he just couldn't stay on his back."

"The entire crew was underweight, but when Don came back they simply decided nothing could stop them. And nothing did stop them."

The Huskies lost no time celebrating the triumph which marked the end of an American competitive campaign begun on the west coast last spring.

The

Athletics Drub Yankees by 10-5; Ripple's Hit Helps Giants to Win

By the Associated Press.

This American League pennant chase would be much more of a push-over for murderers' row than it has been if the Yankees could only cut their second division "cousins" Philadelphia and Washington—off their schedule.

Whether the New York homicide squad, by losing three of its last four games, is finally in a slump remains to be seen, but there's no getting around the fact that the otherwise exploding bats have largely turned out to be duds against the Athletics and Senators.

While the second-place Cleveland Indians have been more or less a dach to Gehrig and company, losing 13 times to the Yanks so far this season and the White Sox and Tigers have been nearly as easy, the Nats and A's, who should have been easy pickings, have been giving the most trouble.

The Senators invaded Yankee Stadium last week-end and took two out of three from the pace-setters. Yesterday the Athletics continued where the Nats left off, giving the Yanks a lesson in heavy-hitting, with a 17-hit attack for a 10 to 5 victory.

Charley Ruffing was bolted out for the second straight time, as the A's fired three homers, half a dozen doubles and eight singles.

The Indians took advantage of the New York defeat to pick up a full game on the pace with a 12-10 triumph over the Browns in as wild a slugfest as the league has seen this season. Thirty-five hits were smashed out, and 11 pitchers were called in to action before it was over.

The Cubs and Giants, second and third-place holders in the National League, continued hot after the season. Cincinnati, with victories over the Reds and Phillies, respectively.

The Cubs cashed in on ten hits for a 7-5 victory to pull up to a half-game back of the Cards, while the Giants, with Jim Ripple doing the heaviest hitting, came through 3-0 behind Clyde Casteleman's nine-hit pitching. The Cards and Pirates were idle.

Lefty Grove returned to form and pitched the best performance of his career, a four-hit job with which the Red Sox shut out the Senators 4-0. It was the team's 10th win of the campaign. The White Sox and Tigers were rained out.

Yesterday's STARS

(By the Associated Press)

Lefty Grove, Red Sox—Held Senators to four hits for 9-0 win.

Jim Ripple, Giants—Batted in two of three runs against Phils.
Frank Demaree, Cubs—Hit homer and two singles, batting in two runs, in 7-5 win over Reds.
Joe Voornik, Indians—Drove in three runs against Browns.

Even Pitchers Pack Big Bats In Yanks' Murderous Lineup

POWER AT THE PLATE. Symbolized by the batting grip of Joe Di Maggio, this commodity is one thing the 1936 New York Yankees have in wholesale quantities. It's the main reason the New Yorkers, shown above at their home playground, Yankee Stadium, are way ahead in the American League.

By SID FEDER

New York (AP)—The dynamite in the Yankees' attack that has made Murderers' Row an almost sure bet for the American League pennant lies in the ability of any man in the batting order to break up a ball game.

It's not as though the opposition pitcher could pass one man to get at an easy third out, because there isn't an easy man to pitch to in the lineup.

From Frank Crosetti in the lead-off spot right down to and including the pitchers, there's an explosion in every bat. This is what is making the Yanks a threat to nearly every extra-base record in the books.

Tough on Enemy Hurlers
As a result, the wear and tear the Yankees have been producing on enemy pitching staffs is terrific. They've used up an average of more than two opposing pitchers per game. The Cleveland Indians threw 43 hurlers against them in 18 games. The Browns used 34 in 16 games; the Tigers 33, the White Sox 30, and it's the same all down the line.

But the ranks haven't seemed to mind any kind of pitching. They like fast ball hurlers better than slow-balls, but a curve is the same to them as a hot one in the groove. They've piled up around 150 homers so far this season, and are aiming at the record of 173 compiled by the 1932 Philadelphia Athletics. They've hit well over 400 extra base blows.

The outstanding point in this record is that every player has had a hand in it. Lou Gehrig, of course leads the way as he knocks out homers in his effort to reach Babe Ruth's all-time high of 60. But Catcher Bill Dickey is up there with more than 20. Rookie Joe Di Maggio and Outfielder George Selkirk are up there, too.

May Set New Records

The Yanks either lead the league, or are right next door to the top, in just about every division of attack. As a team, the homicide squad has batted in around 700 runs for an average of better than six a game, which is hitting "in the clutch" in any league.

If their current pace is maintained there'll be a lot of new records in the books when the 1936 volumes go to press at the end of the season.

With such power, the Yanks have little need for the best pitching in the league. Yet, although the hurling situation was awful before July 15, it has picked up considerably and now ranks with most of the other clubs.

With such a set-up, therefore, there seems little danger the New Yorkers will blow their lead before the pennant chase winds up. Only a major explosion can keep them out of the World Series, and there doesn't seem to be any club, at this writing, that can set off such a blast.

Sport Slants

There is more than a little wisdom in the old adage "You can't win the English title at Wimbledon with all the time." It is especially true in this day of extended campaigns when top-notch athletes are expected to keep going from the beginning of the year to the end.

There are no seasonal breaks in tennis, golf, swimming and track. The athletes either move indoors or follow the sun to such parts of the world as permit competition. Wimbledon, the athlete who points for the highest honors and does not mind an occasional defeat when the defeat means little or nothing.

And Perry of England is just such a man. Perry may suffer a lapse in form during the "off" season, in some minor tournament but when the big tournament comes around you can depend on him to be ready for all comers. Last winter Adrian Quist beat Perry to take the Australian tennis title. Australia's hopes of winning the Davis Cup rested. Later, Perry went down before the slashing attack of Baron Gottfried von Cramm in a French tournament. Germany's tennis stock was boosted to the skies.

Perry smiled and took three days to good grace. He knew well that when the big test at Wimbledon and the Davis Cup matches rolled around he would be ready. He was forces this spring, but the great Jesse Owens suffered a stunning setback a year ago at the national championships when he was headed to the tape in the 100 meters by Eulace Peacock, and a few minutes later was beaten by the same athlete in the running broad jump.

OWENS LANDS IN RECORD JUMP
These defeats probably had much to do with Owens' success this summer. First of all, they showed Jesse that he could not carry through a winning campaign and still be at the peak of his form for the big tests.

They taught him to take things easy and point for the international meeting. He was content to let the other fellows break in the spotlight during the indoor season and win unimportant championships which would be forgotten when the Olympic program got underway. Owens' reward came in Berlin before the largest crowd ever to watch track and field competition.

It's the mark of a great athlete to go along without strain in minor events but to be ready when the big test rolls around. Baseball players in the major leagues soon learn that they cannot last a season if they turn on full pressure in spring exhibition games. They use these unimportant contests to sharpen themselves for the championship race and then turn on the heat when something of importance is at stake. It's the same with the leaders in any sport you can name—they jolt their springs, prepare themselves for the big moment—and then let go.

Same Old Sharkey, Cocky, Confident, Is Ready for Joe Louis

"THE TERRIBLE ONE"

Orangeburg, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP)—That "terrible Sharkey man" is up to his old tricks. He's going around here, popping off about how he's going to annihilate Joe Louis in the Yankee Stadium next Tuesday night.

He's the same old Jack Sharkey, cocky, self-assured, garrulous and, most important of all, supremely confident, he has everybody in Orangeburg and the outlying districts waging everything even the plough and mule on the outcome of next week's slugfests.

"Louis," he snorted today "What about him? Did he ever lick anybody who was worth a thinker's dam? Poor old Carnava was a joke. Paulino was brought in just to get the sucker money. The only man capable of giving him a test was Schmelling and you see what happened there."

"I'll just stop when the bell rings, blast him with all I've got and then finish him up pretty much as I please. He's still a sucker for a right hand and will I feed him plenty of them?"

Trained to a razor's edge and looking the picture of health, Sharkey only wishes the fight were scheduled tonight. "I've been ready for a week," he said "And I'm getting good and tired of waiting around here."

Two days ago, one of Jack's sparring partners clouted him with a right hand and cut his left eye lid. Mike Jacobs was ready to order a postponement, but Sharkey talked him out of it.

It's a bad looking wound, but Jack thinks it may bounce back in his favor. He always fights best when he is mad or bleeding.

"Just let Joe Louis open that cut," said Tony Palazola, Sharkey's trainer. "That will be the beginning of the end. Jack will see so much red he'll charge in and give Louis a worse licking than Schmelling did."

Wilbur All Stars to Play Today, Sunday
Meb Lynch's Wilbur All Stars were scheduled to play the Lake Mohonk baseball team there today, and Sunday afternoon will cross bats with the Firemen at Modena.

Today's game at Mohonk was set for 3 o'clock with Wilbur showing Bud Zoller and Hank Craxan as the battery, and Mohonk, Curry and Up-right.

At Modena tomorrow, the Wilbur crew will strive for its second victory over the Firemen, who boxed to the Lynchmen 14-5. In a previous battle Bud McLean and Perry Crippe will form the Wilbur battery. Miller and Blinchart that of Modena.

OWENS LANDS IN RECORD JUMP
The Altamari Aces came from behind in the last inning and nosed out the Old Catskill Appl'knockers 6-4. Alice and Clair formed the Aces' battery while Flenning, Fein and Plough worked for the Appl'knockers. Kaplan's men scored all their runs in the first inning. The Aces started their half of the seventh one run behind. Joe Dulin doubled and scored on L. Avery's hit. R. Maurer then hit a homer bringing in two runs to end the scoring.

A football player scores rowing because it's a sport in which you "compete sitting down and going backward." But some people find football just a little silly because a fellow merely sticks his head in the mud for other chaps to kick. It's all in the point of view.

Roosevelt Start On Flood Tour

there are remoter nations that wish us not good but ill, they know that we are strong; they know that we can and will defend ourselves and defend our neighborhood."

Chautauque officials estimated the crowd at 12,000, and said it was the largest "since Theodore Roosevelt spoke here."

The President spoke from a platform which Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee for president, will occupy August 24.

On his arrival at Binghamton, Mr. Roosevelt planned to accompany army engineers to view a site near Binghamton for a proposed dam to impound high water of the twisting Otsego river.

The earth obstruction in the path of the Otsego, now a shallow, meandering stream because of the effects of drought, would cost $1,395,000 and would stay flow of possible flood water from 104 miles of watershed.

After a 50-mile automobile trip through the Binghamton flood area and a conference on flood prevention with federal and state officials, Mr. Roosevelt planned to travel by rail to Scranton, Pa.

He scheduled a drive to Wilkes-Barre to inspect locations for projected levees to prevent the Susquehanna river and the tributary Lackawanna from overflowing into homes and anthracite coal mines.

Opposition Collapses
Cleveland, Aug. 15 (AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin said today that opposition to endorsement of Representative William Lemke, the Union party's presidential candidate, had collapsed.

Father Coughlin made the statement at a press conference as the second day's session of the National Union for Social Justice opened.

"New York delegations," Father Coughlin said, "decided in caucus to give full support to Representative Lemke. There was some slight dissension, but the New York and Michigan delegations decided to support Lemke's candidacy."

The 25th New York District delegation, late yesterday submitted a resolution to restrict the convention's endorsement to congressional candidates only.

More than 5,000 resolutions were submitted to the resolutions committee during the night, Father Coughlin said, and almost as many suggestions given the constitutional committee, of which the priest is chairman.

"We encountered no controversy in drafting the constitution," Father Coughlin said. "The draft is the same as the one we followed since last year. The only questions involved were those raised by attorneys, seeking to smooth it from a technical standpoint."

Townley Will Open Lodge on Sunday

Barry Townley, retired actor, who has come from New York to Ulster county to enter a new field of entertainment, that of a pleasure resort operator, will make his bow in the role Sunday afternoon at his place, Townley Lodge, Samsonville, where a full afternoon and evening's program of fun and frolic awaits those who attend the opening.

Townley has announced his program in a series of advertisements inviting the public to attend the opening of the Lodge, formerly the Montena Gray farmhouse, which has been made over into a modern place with a novel grill and cocktail bar constructed by Walter Wilson, once a technician for Paramount pictures. Wilson has been with Townley for several months, supervising the make-over job being done on the old farm which the ex-actor plans to turn into a center of recreation for both summer and winter sports.

In a recent interview, Townley and Wilson too, described Ulster county as one of the most beautiful spots they had ever run across in their travels throughout the United States. It was the scenic beauty of the panoramic view from the old Gray homestead that prompted the two to choose it. The Samsonville farm, which now is dotted with courts for tennis, handball, an archery range and swimming pool, is 2,000 miles above sea level, bordering the Catskill state park.

Townley anticipates a capacity crowd Sunday, he said, made up of Ulster county residents and writers, actors and professional people from New York.
